The Illustrated Christian Weekly

Is a 16 page, finely illustrated paper,

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS AND WANTS OF THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

It aims to be purely Christian, non-sectarian and non-political. Among its contributors we give the following:

Rev. John Hall, D.D., LL.D.

Rev. Howard Crosby, D.D., LL.D.

Rev. Robert F. Sample, D.D.

Rev. Phillips Brooks, D.D.

TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS, FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY,

A GRAND PREMIUM!

A magnificent picture in fourteen oil colors, accurately representing the original of Munkacsy's Great Painting, "CHRIST BEFORE PILATE," not a plain engraving, but exactly like the original.

Below we give letters received from prominent Boston clergymen:

SHAWM CONG. CHURCH, Boston, Jan. 29, '89.

For over a year I have been familiar with your paper, and I am very much pleased with it. It is worthy of admission into every Christian home. It is a paper for old and young, for all classes. The illustrations are well done, and the articles are well written. I particularly like the sketches of the life of Jesus.

The Boston Globe says, "Congressman Elijah A. Morse is a hustler for his friends every where. His candidate for superintendent of mails in the Boston postoffice, Mr. Henry A. Thomas of Weymouth, is 'got there' is a gem among gongs."

Covered it the moment I saw it.

The Norfolk Club.

At the dinner of the Norfolk Club last Saturday, in Boston, H. A. Thomas, Esq., Secy. of the Club, was introduced by his president French as the new Sup't of Mails at the Boston postoffice, and Mr. Thomas, in responding, said he should give his duties his best thought and efforts, and should strive for the success of the Club. Incidentally, Mr. Thomas put in a few words of high praise for George, whom he referred to as a very able and capable postmaster, even if he is a Democrat, a good public officer and a true man, and he hoped that no Republican, or at least no member of the Norfolk club, would attempt to secure the appointment of anybody in his place until his tenure of office had expired, at all events.

Representative A. C. Cook, of this town, made a vigorous address, and Congressman E. W. Morse defended Postmaster-General French against the aspersions of his political enemies. He said, "I do not believe John Wanamaker, the great merchant of Philadelphia, is any less qualified for the duties of his position as postmaster-general because he superintended a Sunday school. He is no worse a postmaster-general than French who is under investigation." Congressman Morse said that, for 25 years, in a small way, he was himself a Sunday school teacher, and henceforth will be more frequently associated with the congressional. He had already noticed an improvement in the business of the postoffice department under Postmaster-General French, who has come in. He is a better government official certainly for his high religious and moral character.

Tuition School Graduates.

In 1888, the school committee established a training school, and voted that it should be under the general direction of the Superintendent of Schools, and commanding the third Monday in September, routine for thirty weeks thereafter during the regular school year. It was also voted that only those applicants for schools who have had experience in teaching or who have attended a normal training school, a college or university, shall, after Jan. 1, 1889, be graduated as teachers in the public schools of this town. In accordance with the above vote a training school was established the third Monday in September last with nineteen. Of this number all with the exception of Carrie W. Byer, have complied with the requirements and last Friday they graduated and received certificates of qualification. Miss Byer was obliged to leave the school on account of sickness in her family. Following is a list of those who received certificates and the school from which they graduated:

Pannie E. Hadaway	Plymouth High
Franklin, Wey.	Weymouth High
Clara A. Hollister	South
Arria S. Stewart	South
Jill M. Heywood	North
Hannah A. Whelan	North
Annie L. Coffey	South
Estellie A. Johnson	South
Lizzie M. Hickey	South
Jennie W. Hickey	South
Cora L. Heard	South
Ages M. Hickey	South
Nellie M. Hollister	South
S. Laura Batchelder	Weymouth High
Mary L. Tucker	Wey.
Clara E. McGivney	Wey.
Maggie L. Hollister	South

Surplus Water.

Various attempts have been made to relieve the Hunt schoolyard of the surplus water which surged through it in rainy weather, and over $250 has been spent on the yard since the school house was built. The two deep wells along the outer front of the lot with two drains running from it across the street to the hollow opposite, will be filled by setting a stone curb around the hollow. The work has been done, an effective remedy for the former trouble. A plan is now being made to fill the hollow, the water being taken off foot long. The water from Front street, through Broad street, will also flow into this canal.

Street Lighting.

The Selectmen accompanied the representatives of the electric light and power company over the town yesterday, to fix upon the location of poles for the electric light wires. The poles arrived yesterday afternoon. The telephone company was represented, the intention being to add to the number of their poles in town. The Selectmen and the telephone men granted the electric light company the right to erect poles there, with the proviso that the poles can also be used for the fire alarm system.

Low Values.

A runer was circulated last week that a prominent leather house in the city had suspended, owing to the great shrinkage in price, the present time, but to the gratification of the friends of the firm, they have held up to foundation in truth. The leather market is in bad condition just now, prices continuing to fall, and they are the lowest known for years. Whether this is due to overproduction or diminished demand, is not clear, but a report of the leather market in New York is found in the fact that a good deal of leather is being imported, while a solid green hide was sold in Boston last week, and the tanners are said to have stock on hand which cost about a cent a pound, while the ruling price now is about 5 cents.

Liquor Detectives.

"Faxon's spotters" is the title given to the party of Mr. H. H. Faxon, ferreting out offenders in Quincy, against the liquor laws. Mr. Faxon says, "I have advised in Quincy, a method which has been used by the Russell and the lawyer who advised him. It is the employment of 'underground' detective, drawn among the police force, to obtain information with all the information necessary to obtain a conviction. These informers are to be brought to appear in court, and the law officers are to be made as to the source of my knowledge concerning their business. In fact they don't know how they can trust."

Bullet's Charge.

Admiral Porter, one of the naval heroes at the capture of New Orleans, is the victim of a recent grave charge by David T. Bullock, of Quincy. A naval officer, he is accused of having been a party to the capture of the ironclad "Monitor" and the "Merrimac," and the lawyer who advised him. It is the employment of "underground" detective, drawn among the police force, to obtain information with all the information necessary to obtain a conviction. These informers are to be brought to appear in court, and the law officers are to be made as to the source of my knowledge concerning their business. In fact they don't know how they can trust."

Monogram Yacht Club.

The regattas of the above Club for this season have been announced by card and will be given in a later issue. In case of any difficulty with the date of the club house will be arranged from time to time, as arranged for the regular contestants. At the regular meetings, the club house will be open to all, and the members will be invited to the meeting. The tickets will be sold at the door, and the proceeds will be turned over to the club.

They Are Coming.

On Wednesday evening, May 29th, the Boston Transportation Company, of New York, will appear in Weymouth under the auspices of Philbin Lodge, No. 12, P. O., and will present an attractive program of entertainment.

Tickets have been placed at the hotel, 25 cents, and the members of Philbin Lodge hope to see all of their friends present. Tickets will be placed on sale early next week.

TUFTS LIBRARY.

NEW BOOKS RECEIVED.

The books will be ready for delivery on the Saturday following the issue of the Gazette containing the list.

TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS, FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY,

A GRAND PREMIUM!

A magnificent picture in fifteen oil colors, necessarily representing the original of Monet's Great Painting, "CHRIST BEFORE PLATE," not a plain engraving, but exactly like the original.

Below we give letters received from prominent Boston clergymen:

PAUL STERLING, CHURCH, Boston, Mass.

For many years I have been familiar with "The Illustrated Christian Weekly" for years. It is always a good paper, but it is better than ever. It is a paper that I can read with profit and interest every Christian home. It is a paper for old and young. The engraving of "Christ before Plate," which is given to the subscriber, is a great addition.

Conrad Alfred Peterson died at his home, Weymouth Landing, on the 10th inst., of long seated consumption, the result of a series of wounds incurred in the service of his country.

In August 1861, at the age of 16, he enlisted in Co. H, of the 25th Mass. Inf., and less than four weeks from his muster-on-the-blood field of Antietam, he received a terrible wound in the head, a minie-ball entering below the left eye and passing out at the back of the neck. He lay on the field all night, enduring untold suffering, and the next day was carried to Weymouth, where he remained until Dec. '62 when he was discharged for permanent disability.

Nearly twenty-six years our comrade was ill and sufferer, the alteration of the palate and throat, affecting his speech and making it difficult to swallow or talk.

In the life and death of this humble but heroic soldier, we can partially sense the infinite sacrifice made by loyal men to preserve the Union. Like our late comrade there are thousands of ex-soldiers all over the land who carry in their bodies the seeds of death planted there while defending the Republic. We shall deserve the reproduction of all loyal souls if we ever forget what we owe to these men.

Conrad Alfred Peterson became a member of Co. H, in Jan., 1862, and to the utmost of his ability by attendance at meetings and in the ranks he performed the duties of a worthy comrade.

While deplored the loss of our friend and companion in arms, we must not forget the loss the surviving wife and mother of another soldier, who died in full sympathy, and the assurance that in the day of adversity, the rank and heroism of the Post will not be without its reward.

The Adjutant will make it his duty to see that this order is published in the Weymouth BAZAAR, and also in the Weymouth HERALD, and to inform all that should the day ever come, Sulphur Bitters.

The Upper Law.

Boston liquor dealers, who have been severely pressed by the restrictions of the license law, have appeared before the legislative committee on an order relating to exempting 4th and 5th classes of license from the law limit. The main argument of the dealers was that several thousand persons were deprived of means of support under the law, to which ex-Gov. Long replied that for every one who is in danger of becoming a pauper by the operation of this law, 100 will be kept from pauperism through drink.

monstrous snake suddenly appeared on the surface of the pool, and two large and lustreous eyes became fixed with diabolical gleam on the intruders.

An angry hiss, like the phasing of a rattlesnake, issued from the hole in the head of the snake, and the water was now filled with the hissing of many snakes.

OUR ELECTRIC PLANT.

In a humorous poem on the late Centennial, Hurdette recounts the modern improvements of railroads, steamships, the telegraph, telephones, electric lights and motors, etc., which have sprung into existence since the time of Washington, and winds up with a recital of past and present benefits:

"With the expression, 'But, alas! we have no Washington,' an implication that good and true men are scarce in our times. The fact is patent, however, that there never has been an age when progress in all things for the welfare of mankind was so widely manifested and us to sat down upon in so unwarrentable a manner. No one will question the genius, the paternity, the moral courage of the immortal Washington, but the immense advancement of the world since his day has brought to the front a host of talents in all the ranks of life—admirable in every way. Every man who has labored and struggled in the effort to conquer the forces of nature and bind them to the service of mankind, is an heroic character and well deserves a meed of fame, proportionate to his work. The vast field of electrical science is one path to eminence, in which from the days of Franklin, who with his kite line and key drew the electric fluid harmlessly from the raving cloud, intelligent men of all the ages have done great results and great gain to public benefit, which is being shared by every community of note in the world."

As a manifestation of the greater good which is soon to flow from the researches of the modern heroes of science "Porteolec's System of Transportation," at the Old South Church in Boston, last Wednesday, in which that noted author and lecturer, Mr. F. O. Key, has a lively interest, and to whom we are indebted for an invitation to be present at this exhibition. The invention is a system of electric transportation which is destined to work a thorough change in the methods of transportation of man and other packages, and that in all other ways. In passenger conveyance over land routes, we may confidently assert, enabling a traveler to journey over long distances in a mere trice, and as inexpensively as credible. A package, it is said, can be transported by this system from Boston to New York in four hours, and this is of wonderful value to the transportation of a passenger by the means in the same time, may become a possibility. There are some difficulties in the way, such as the economy and the difficulties as insurmountable. But when we remember the predictions of Dr. Lister, that the entire civilization of the world would be Atlantic and the assertion of other wise men of Europe, when the Men's Canal railroad was built, that the Americans were to be beaten, we are bound to conclude that this is a very safe bet.

Mention was made last week of the illness of Mrs. Pool, daughter of Mr. John S. Fog, and it is now a painful reminder of the sad event which occurred, which occurred at the Homeopathic Hospital, in Boston, where she had undergone a severe operation.

The Dr. Sprangling of Hingham, that the operation was successfully performed, but she failed to rally from subsequent weakness.

Personal.

Prof. Silas A. Alden, of the Monroe College of Oratory, rendered a number of services at the Old North in a manner to fairly capture the attention and the pleasure of the audience. His efforts will be obtained if possible.

The personnel of the team is: Captain, John White; pitcher, Jerry P. Canney; catcher, Ellen Moran; Maguire, Eddie; Johnson, P. Anderson; Mrs. Miller, Schermer.

Z. L. HICKELL, P. M.

Mr. Everett C. Loud, florist, has donated a lot of hand-made flowers on Quincy square, from his greenhouse on High street.

Patrick Moriarty is reported ill with pneumonia, but not seriously.

Henry J. Hart is spending a few weeks at New York city and vicinity. A new house is under construction, and we advise our friends to buy him a present as we believe it is the best, purest and most economical soap made.

James L. Bates, of W. V. Willmuster's florist shop, will be at the Weymouth Fair next Monday evening.

The Social Club of a few invited guests to go to Schell's, and a symphony to listen to the music by the Weymouth Hand, who were having their rehearsal.

The Ladies' Sewing Circle connected with the Catholic church will meet next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. in the hall of St. Peter's church.

Henry J. Hart, at the Weymouth monumental works, has a large stock of cast iron vases and bouquet holders.

Letters remain in the post office, and those who have not yet received their mail are requested to call at the post office.

JAMES W. HANLON, P. M.

The subject of Rev. Mr. Eaton's sermon in the Universalist church next Sunday morning will be "The moral and social worth of the Universalist."

Rev. W. S. Gould of Providence, R. I., is expected to preach at the Union church Sunday.

Mr. Almon, Name of Hingham, the author of "The Northern Chorus," since her arrival here on a visit to her parents, has been quite ill with rheumatism.

It will pay you well to investigate the merits of Brussels soap.

Mr. George Davis has removed to St. John's, N. B.

Patrick Hentley has provided his wagon with a Gurney refrigerator box.

A. H. Hobart has the contract to have the electric poles, two hundred in number.

The Dwight Glee Club are making arrangements to hold a grand concert in the near future, and as they have the largest and most numerous participants in the past, they should be greatly enjoyed.

At the entertainment of the "Wrens" in Lincoln Hall, Weymouth evening, May 16, the Boston Opera and the Harvard Quartet, who gave their latest success, will be present.

The "Sweethearts" and "Outwits" will be present.

Tickets are now on sale.

Mr. H. Hart & Co's & Co's should be present at once.

Hanley's afternoon.

The Village Cemetery has recently been decorated with a number of monumental structures from the Weymouth Marble Works of Mr. John Kelley, among them being three handsome granite monuments, and a granite tablet on the four sides, erected on the lots of Messrs. E. Atherton Hunt, Amory, J. W. Smith, and Joseph Stiles.

Elaborately worked headstones have been placed at the graves of Fred L. Thayer, Hiram Grant, and James H. Thayer, all of whom are buried in Hingham.

The steamer "Hannibal" will be furnished by the well known firm of contracting engineers, John Post Jr. & Co., Boston, and the "Compton" Company, engineering engines and the like, Contracting Apparatus and Pumps.

The pole construction and wiring both for aerial and incandescent lighting, and power will soon become an established feature of our progress. This company has been formed, and when the laws of Massachusetts, with a capital of $50,000, to be increased when necessary, and are addressed to Major Hart, who will be present at the association in June.

With this, we turn to the special subject of "the Electric Plant," we note that our town is to become a great center of electrical power and its advantages, which it is hoped will give it another impetus in prosperity.

The Weymouth Electric Light and Power Company, consisting of body corporate, and electric lighting and power will soon become an established feature of our progress. IN THE NICK OF TIME

Mrs. Lily Somers, night telegraph operator at the Floodwood station, sat before her table on which the telegraph instrument clicked busily, a thoughtful expression on her face.

A face whose expression was its charm, that never could be called pretty, but that, nevertheless, suggested a possibility—only a possibility—of being handsome. For there is a vast difference between pretty on one hand, and handsome on the other.

She began to feel anxious, as they were evidently coming at a high rate of speed, and not approaching as carefully as their order had instructed them; she also had not heard the whistle which is always sounded by trains when approaching a station, and this omission increased her fear that something was wrong.

But she was given no time for further reflection, as the train now dashed around a curve not a hundred yards distant, running at full speed.

Lily flew out and stood between the rails swinging her hand lamp wildly across the track and shouting at the top of her clear young voice. But no attention was paid to her signal, the train coming madly on, with such a rattle and dash that it drowned the sound of her voice.

The roaring, rushing train was now upon her, and she barely had time to spring from the track and escape with her life. With a rattling crash and a awful rush of air the hissing, blustering wind swept swiftly past her, while the clang, clang of the car wheels passing over a loose spike near by was so rapid that it resembled the rapid hammering of an ax to a blacksmith's shop.

For a moment Lily was unversed and bewildered, but suddenly arousing herself to action she rushed into the office, and seizing a pail of firebrick that duty for a stove-pot, she turned and hurried through the window of the embankment that was just passing.

An instant later the red lights in the rear end of the train had disappeared around a curve in the cut, and the rattle of the running rods quickly lessened in the distance.

Lily's heart beat palpably and she was seized with a sudden fit of shivering, which most persons of delicate organizations are subject to when great exertion.

As soon as she had somewhat recovered she went into the office, and calling the train dispatcher, who answered at once, she said:

"No. 22 passed at full speed and No. 21 not yet arrived!"

"My God!" telephoned back the dispatcher as swiftly as his frightened fingers could form the letters, "The crew must be asleep. They will strike in that end and pile up like a frozen rabbit."

It was about 1 o'clock in the morning when Lily received an order from the train dispatcher, which read as follows:

To OPERATOR, FLOODWOOD—Hold No. 21 until No. 22 arrives. E. C. K.

On receipt of this order she immediately displayed the red signal light, which is furnished at all telegraph stations for this purpose, in a conspicuous place, in plain sight of passing trains, and also where it could be seen from the office window.

The necessity for this order and position of the two trains, briefly stated, are as follows:

No. 22 had arrived at Silver Creek, ten miles west of Floodwood, a few minutes after No. 21 had passed Redwood, which was thirteen miles east of Floodwood. As No. 22 was late and could go no farther on the schedule, according to the rules of the road, they would be compelled to lay at Silver Creek until No. 21 arrived there, unless they could get orders by telegraph to meet them at some other station. Floodwood being the only intervening telegraph office between the two trains, the dispatcher gave the above order to that station, and as soon as it was properly acknowledged by Lily he sent another order to No. 22 at Silver Creek, which read in this manner:

To CONDUCTOR AND ENGINEER No. 22, Meet No. 21 at Floodwood. Approach carefully.

E. C. K.

The intelligent reader will readily understand that by means of these orders the two trains would meet each other at Floodwood in perfect safety, notwithstanding that one of them knew nothing of the arrangement.

To explain: If No. 21 should arrive first, they would be stopped by the red light, which showed that there were orders for them at this station. The conductor and engineer would immediately proceed to the telephone office, where the operator would deliver them a copy of the order to hold them for No. 22. This would be sufficient, and they would wait until No. 22 arrived. If No. 22 should arrive first, the execution of the order would be yet more simple. No. 22 would take the siding, and as soon as they were clear Lily would be at liberty to take down the red signal lantern, and allow No. 21 to pass without stopping.

No. 22 having arrived, the object of the order was already fulfilled. If both trains should happen to arrive at the same time, the red signal would stop No. 21, and as No. 22 had instructions to "approach carefully," they would do so, expecting to find No. 21 occupying the main track.

Lily perfectly understood the importance of the order she had just received, and during the long hour which wore slowly away she kept careful watch on the signal light which, however, continued to burn as brightly as ever. At last she heard a rumbling noise away in the west which gradually became louder and louder and more distinct. By this time she knew that No. 22 was coming and would probably get in on the siding before No. 21 should arrive.

The rumbling became louder and louder each moment; the car began to tremble, and the peculiar vibration in the air which gives warning of a rapidly approaching train hummed loudly in her ears.

She began to feel anxious, as they were evidently coming at a high rate of speed, and not approaching as carefully as their order had instructed them; she also had not heard the whistle which is always sounded by trains when approaching a station, and this omission increased her fear that something was wrong.

But she was given no time for further reflection, as the train now dashed around a curve not a hundred yards distant, running at full speed.

Lily flew out and stood between the rails swinging her hand lamp wildly across the track and shouting at the top of her clear young voice. But no attention was paid to her signal, the train coming madly on, with such a rattle and dash that it drowned the sound of her voice.

The train was a forlornly desolate spot, and one where any woman, except Lily, would have been afraid to come, much less to stay alone all night with nothing but the wild wind sighing through the wires overhead and the shrill shrieks of the wild cats away up on the mountain's side to keep her company through her nightly vigil. But in her there was something fascinating in the very desolation of the place. From early childhood she had been accustomed to commune with nature in her wild scenes, and played and wandered at will in the mountain grotos and canons. With no foolish old woman or silly nurse girl to frighten her sensible with girls who had grown to womanhood naturally brave and fearless. In truth she did not understand the meaning of the word fear.

Her office was nothing more than a roughly built sally, seven or eight feet square, with a small window in each end and one in the door which faced the railroad track. It had been hurriedly put together with green lumber while the road was in course of construction, with the intention of only using it temporarily until a better one could be built, but as usual in such cases, it did duty for its original purpose even.

The rough, unpainted boards were tightly wrapt and shranken by long exposure to the elements, and in many places large knots had fallen completely out.

No doubt in the winter time the bleak mountain wind whirled through these narrow apertures, and while one side of the unsheltered operator was being exposed to the elements, and in many places large knots had fallen completely out.
